

Are you a spousal caregiver of a person living with Alzheimer's disease or related dementia?

Help our team understand how spousal caregiving affects your physical and mental health, brain function and stress levels.

The Alzheimer's Foundation of America is seeking volunteers to participate in our nationwide survey for our national dementia and spousal caregiver research study!

Why Participate?

- Your insights can help improve awareness, programs, services and policies.
- You will contribute to insights that could make life better for thousands of families.

Who Can Join?

Must be a full-time primary caregiver, age 21 or older, for a spouse or partner with Alzheimer's or another dementia, living in the U.S. and with internet access.

Learn More/Register

Scan the QR code or visit
alzfdn.org/spousal-caregiving-study/

If you have questions about the research study, please contact:

Principal Investigator: Donna de Levante Raphael, Ph.D., M.S.

Email: DRaphael@alzfdn.org

Phone: 866-232-8484, Ext 115

Spousal Caregivers Wanted for National Dementia Caregiver Research Study!

The Alzheimer's Foundation of America wants to explore ways to support caregivers of people with Alzheimer's disease or related dementias in managing their health outcomes. No travel. Confidential.

Purpose of the Study

This study aims to understand how caregiving affects the mental, physical, and cognitive health of spouses of people with Alzheimer's or related dementias.

Is This Study a Good Fit for Me?

This study may be a good fit for you if you are a caregiving spouse or partner of a person affected by Alzheimer's disease or other related dementias.

Location of the Study

This study will be conducted nationwide and will take place entirely online through a secure survey format. No travel is required.

What Your Participation Involves

Participants will complete a 30–45 minute online survey about your caregiving experience and well-being. It can be done anytime, anywhere. Responses are completely confidential.

Potential Outcomes

You will contribute to critical insights that may help improve policy, care, treatment, awareness and caregiver programs. Your voice matters. It can help shape the future of care and support.

Learn More or Register:

Scan the QR code or visit
alzfdn.org/spousal-caregiving-study/

If you have questions about the study, please contact:

Principal Investigator: Donna de Levante Raphael, Ph.D., M.S.

Email: DRaphael@alzfdn.org

Phone: 866-232-8484, Ext 115